

OPATIJA

Architecture of hotels, villas and pensions has characteristics of neo-styles and secession. Facades and ornaments on the buildings show the Mediterranean spirit.

LOCATION AND CLIMATE

Opatija is situated at the foot of the mountain and nature park Ucka, on the east coast of Istria, in the bay of Rijeka. Due to the nearby mountain, it is well protected from northern and north-western winds. The town and its surrounding area have rich vegetation. The climate is Mediterranean with mild winters and warm summers. The average temperature in January amounts to 4,7°C, and in July and August to 23°C, whereas the sea temperature can even reach 26°C during the summertime. The annual insolation amounts to 2030 hours, and the Ucka mountain detains the dampness brought by western winds.

HISTORY AND SIGHTS

Opatija has developed around the Benedictine abbey of St. Jacob, mentioned in the 15th century for the first time. At that time, it had only 35 houses situated alongside the church complex. Opatija as we know it today started developing in the mid 19th century when the railway Vienna - Trieste with the branch line for Rijeka was built. Since then, the city gained more importance. In 1884 the Austrian company of the Southern Railways opened the first hotel „Kvarner”, and some time later the official health resort of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy. Apart from that, many parks, roads, piers and promenades to the nearby

Lovran were built.

From the historical sights, the chapel of St. Jacob from the year 1506 is preserved (remodelled in the 18th century and expanded in the 20th century). The park of St. Jacob, the park Angiolina as well as the villa Angiolina are built in the 19th century. The fountains „Helios” and „Selena”, the work of the sculptor Hans Rathautsky from 1889, are quite significant, as well as the sculpture „Woman with a seagull”, placed on a cliff in the sea, and the church of Mary’s Annunciation (neo-Romanesque building).

Architecture of hotels, villas and pensions has characteristics of neo-styles and secession. Facades and ornaments on the buildings show the Mediterranean spirit.

From the buildings built after the Second World War, the hotels Ambassador, Adriatic I, Adriatic II and Admiral are the most prominent.

OPATIJA TODAY

Nowadays, Opatija is a well known health resort as well as tourist destination on the east coast of Istria.

It has a leading position in Croatia as a destination for organized conferences, seminars and counselling. Apart from that, throughout the year it offers numerous festivals, concerts, exhibitions and other culture and sports events worth mentioning.

Lungo mare is one of the most beautiful promenades on the Adriatic, 11 km long, than connects Opatija with Lovran via Icici. Two national parks are situated in the nearby area - Risnjak and Brijuni; around the island of Losinj you can find the biggest Mediterranean habitat of dolphins, and there is also an ornithological reserve on the island of Cres.

Alongside the coast, stretching north and south of Opatija, there are several winter resorts.

Apart from the beautiful bays, where you can find place for sports and
